FRESHMEN: The College of Engineering reviews applications of interested students. We use the following criteria to assess applicants for admission:

- math and composite scores for SAT or ACT (test scores required)

- academic GPA, class rank

- rigor of high school courses (honors and AP/IB classes)

- performance in math and science classes

- participation in engineering/science camps, clubs, classes

Admitted engineering students will be identified as No Major Selected (undecided) Engineering. Prior to Orientation, students who have been admitted to the honors college will have the opportunity to select their engineering major. Others will remain as No Major Selected for at least their first semester. Please refer to the College of Engineering website for additional information on admission.

TRANSFER: To be considered for admission to engineering, applicants must have a calculated* minimum GPA of 2.5 or higher, transferable Calculus I credit, and supporting science coursework (e.g. chemistry, physics, etc.).

*The GPA is recalculated based on coursework applicable to the engineering curriculum.
