

The Doris Duke Conservation Scholars Program

at the University of Washington

NOW ACCEPTING APPLICATIONS FOR OUR 2021 COHORT
DEADLINE FEBRUARY 1, 2021

ABOUT OUR PROGRAM

The Doris Duke Conservation Scholars Program at the University of Washington is a diverse, committed, and creative community from around the country that aims to change the face and future of conservation. We support emerging conservation scholars in developing innovative perspectives and skills by providing opportunities to explore nature conservation and its relationship to environmental justice in both urban and rural contexts.

DETAILS

- Two-summer program (June-August) with academic year support
- Professional development & internship opportunities
- Stipend of $4,400 / summer
- All expenses paid

LEARN MORE

Sign up for one of our information webinars
(link in website)

- December 11, 2021 @ 11am Pacific Time
- January 11, 2021 @ 11am Pacific Time

Visit our website and apply at:

uwconservationscholars.org

email: ddcsp@uw.edu

NFWF

COLLEGE OF THE ENVIRONMENT
UNIVERSITY of WASHINGTON

EARTHLAB
UNIVERSITY of WASHINGTON