

Rekindling the Seventh Fire

With Greg Cajete, Ph.D.

Wednesday, February 21, 2018

4:30pm-8:00pm

BIO5 Keating Building, room 103

Join us for a special event with Greg Cajete, Ph.D., Santa Clara Pueblo scholar and Chair of Native American Studies at the University of New Mexico. Dr. Cajete is the author of numerous books about the Native perspective on science and education and will speak about his work and his latest book. The audience will have time to ask questions and discuss native perspectives on science and research. Refreshments will be served.

Indigenous Community: Rekindling the Teachings of the Seventh Fire

Dr. Greg Cajete's 2015 book concerns the importance of community as the foundation and lifeblood of Indigenous education as well as the path to sustainable ways of life.

Sponsors: Collaborators

AZ Indians Into Medicine, BIO5 Institute, Department of American Indian Studies, Department of Mexican American Studies, Department of Teaching, Learning and Sociocultural Studies, Indigenous Teacher Education Project at the College of Education, Native American Research and Training Center, Native Nations Institute, and the Southwest Environmental Health Sciences Center