Time and location: Tuesday, 3:30-6pm, ENR2 S210

In this 3-unit course, we will examine development, use, and management of water in arid and semi-arid regions. Using historical and modern-day case studies, we will assess international, regional, and local water issues from multiple perspectives: environmental, social, and economic.

The course format will encourage participation in discussions and presentations. Students will perform an assessment of a selected issue.
