

IA 597D

Diversity, Equity and Inclusion in College Teaching

---

Tu/Th 11:00 - 12:15

FALL 2020 | LIVE ONLINE | 3 UNITS

This workshop-style course focuses on the practical application of multidisciplinary research that informs diversity, equity, and inclusion in higher education. Personal and professional development opportunities are built into the course.

At the end of this course, you will be able to:

---

1. Articulate the role of diversity-responsive teaching given the historical legacy of the higher education system.
  2. Describe the scholarship that informs evidence-based, equity-minded course design and teaching practice.
  3. Respond to your personal values, biases, and perspectives related to diversity in higher education with a plan of action.
  4. Explain specific instructional strategies that promote equitable course designs and cooperative learning environments.
  5. Create teaching materials that illustrate inclusivity in curriculum, instruction, and assessment within your respective disciplines.
-