

Bridgestone Americas, Inc. is seeking candidates for a Student intern for our Biorubber research program. This position will be working from the Bridgestone Americas, Inc. Agro Operations Guayule Farm in Eloy, AZ. The Student intern will assist with general program activities and research experiments under the direction of research scientists focused on the agronomy and genetics/breeding of guayule. Some of the activities this position will assist with include but are not limited to:

- Learning how to design research studies
- Implementing and carrying out specific research studies
- Working in the field, greenhouse and laboratory
- Gathering data in the field and greenhouse
- Collecting seed in the greenhouse and field
- Assisting with pollinations in the greenhouse
- Cleaning small seed lots produced by the plant breeding program
- Sowing seed and transplanting seedlings in the greenhouse
- Working with laboratory equipment
- Assist with transplanting seedlings in the field
- Ability to independently execute detailed work-plans

The ideal candidate will possess:

- Pursuing a degree in a scientific discipline
- Enrolled in at least 9 credit hours
- The ability to independently execute detailed work-plans

Applicants must be authorized to work in the United States. To be considered for this position, submit your cover letter and resume to Sarah Smith by e-mail to smithsarah@bfusa.com.