

TO: Land Grant University Agriculture Deans and Directors
FROM: Farm Foundation, NFP
DATE: April 4, 2014

We are pleased to announce a wonderful opportunity for current students of agriculture to attend the highly regarded the Farm Foundation® Round Table through our new Cultivators Program.

Up to six upper class or graduate level students from an accredited North American college or university will be selected from a competitive pool of applicants to participate in the Round Table meeting June 5 – 7, 2014 in Oklahoma City, OK.

A program of Farm Foundation®, NFP, Round Table is an invitational group of 200 agricultural leaders who meet semi-annually to discuss issues of importance to agribusiness, the food system and rural communities. The sessions are intended to provide ideas and a learning experience that participants may use in their own activities. The program for the Oklahoma City meeting will focus on soil health.

The Round Table meeting officially begins on Thursday, June 5, 2014 with the optional tours and an opening reception. Program sessions will be held on Friday and Saturday morning, June 6th & 7th.

Students selected for the Cultivator program will receive an award that will cover all programs fees as well as room and board. The nominating university or college will be responsible for the student's travel expenses.

To nominate a student, please read through the attached FAQ, and submit an application by April 25, 2014. Winners will be chosen by the Round Table Scholarship Committee. Winners will be notified by May 9, 2014.

We look forward to welcoming the best and brightest agriculture students to this important and prestigious gathering in Oklahoma!

What is the Round Table Cultivator program?

The Cultivator program provides awards for up to six undergraduate or graduate-level students from accredited agricultural programs in the United States to attend a Farm Foundation® Round Table meeting.

What does the award cover?

The award covers meeting registration costs and hotel rooms. It will be the responsibility of the student, or nominating institution to cover the cost of travel.

Who can nominate a student?

Only a dean or director from a participating institution can nominate a student for the Cultivator program. Two months before each Round Table meeting, deans or directors will be invited to select an upper-classman or graduate-level students to attend the Round Table Farm Foundation encourages the sponsoring institution to choose students who have a direct interest in the subject on which the Round Table meeting program will be focused.

What is required for the poster presentation?

Cultivators will be required to prepare a “poster presentation” that they will host during the Round Table kick-off reception. The subject can focus on the student’s research, interests or a current project in which he/she are involved.

How will students meet Round Table members?

A Round Table member will be assigned as a host/mentor each Cultivator. Mentors will reach out to the students before the event to let them know how to dress, what to expect, etc. At the meeting Mentors will ensure that the Cultivators are meeting other Round Table members, students, speakers and guests. They will also introduce them during the Round Table lunch.

Reactions from the January 2014 Farm Foundation Cultivators

“As a cultivator, I enjoyed all the [Cultivator] posters and the interaction with the Farm Foundation Round Table members. Their insightful questions and suggestions opened up new avenues and helped me think through my research.”

“As a Cultivator I thought all the members were very inclusive and it was comfortable talking to all the members. I learned a lot over the three days and will definitely incorporate suggestions and comments on my way forward.”

“As a Cultivator, I found these discussions very interesting. It is a rare opportunity to interact with leaders of the industry as a student.”

“I absolutely loved being a part of the program. I thought that it was a great experience where I was able to grow as a student and also gain valuable information from not only the speakers, but also from others that were attending the conference.”

“I would like to thank you in starting the Cultivator program. It was a great experience for me and surpassed all of my expectations. I learned so much that I could have imagined and made some great connections to others in the agriculture industry.”

“It was a great opportunity to network with industry leaders which is uncommon for graduate or undergraduate students. I hope that the Cultivator program continues to be a part of future Farm Foundation meetings. I will highly encourage my classmates to apply for this program in the future.”
