

September 24, 2015

The GCA Desert Studies Award was established in 2006 by the Garden Club of America to further botany, environmental science, horticulture, and landscape design relating to the arid landscape. This award is currently administered by the Desert Botanical Garden, although candidates can apply for internships at any botanical garden or arboretum with a focus on the arid landscape. While the award is open to undergraduate and graduate students, to date mainly master or doctoral candidates have benefitted.

Recently we have found that undergraduate students from many schools are eager for work/study programs that provide skills and insight into various career possibilities. The GCA Desert Studies Award will look to meet this challenge. Now preference will be given to undergraduate applicants wishing to gain practical field experience—planning and design for sustainability, rainwater harvesting and plant management, etc. – through structured internships at various public botanical gardens and arboreta.

We suggest that students contact garden staff from a public garden or arboretum of their choice to establish a project of interest to both the garden and the student. We hope your garden will join with us to encourage internship projects for arid land studies to meet this need.

In lieu of an internship, applicants can propose a project beyond the usual course of study. However, internships will be given preference..

Information is attached and at the website :

<http://www.dbg.org/scholarships>

A flyer to inform students is also included.

If you have questions, please email: kzelov@dbg.org, tel: 480-481- 8162

Kenny Zelov
Asst. Horticultural Director
Desert Botanical Garden

UNDERGRADUATES AND GRADUATES...

OF * BOTANY

* ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCE

* LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURE

Apply ...earn a
GCA AWARD IN DESERT STUDIES !
$4000 To Work in....

Sustainability

Plant Management

Arid Design

Preference to students who plan and participate in intern programs at Botanical Gardens and Arboreta.....

<https://www.dbg.org/scholarships>

Contact: K. Zelov, Desert Botanical Garden,
1201 N Galvin Parkway, Phoenix, AZ 85008
kzelov@dbg.org

*This Garden Club of America Award is administered
By The Desert Botanical Garden*

