

Careers Virtual Workshop - Monday, February 15, 2021 (1:30 PST/2:30 MST/3:30 EST)

- Portaging Your Way Around Obstacles in The Job Application Stream
Range professionals and hiring specialists will help you recognize difficulties you may encounter when applying for jobs and suggest strategies to overcome common obstacles.
- Preparing for Your Trip
Range professionals will share tips on how to put your best foot forward, find your way through the puzzle and build resilience to endure the journey. Explore critical survival tools like carefully reviewing your course requirements, building your resume, and networking.
- What Your Destination Looks Like
The rangeland profession was built on professional positions with federal land management agencies and is often referred to as the “Range 454 Series” for Mission Critical Occupations. However, new opportunities are quickly emerging in the rangeland discipline that now include many job opportunities at non-profit organizations, consulting and restoration firms, state agencies and ranches. Active rangeland professionals will share details on the diverse choices you have for a career in rangelands.
- New Frontiers for Rangeland Careers
The face of rangeland management is changing every day and now includes broader themes in land stewardship and ecosystem management. Trends now include restoration, fire management, and endangered species conservation partnerships. Your horizons now offer more creativity in where you want to go with your profession, and it’s important to read the wind to prepare for where this profession is headed.

---

Workshop is Free and valuable to anyone interested in a rangeland career

1. Sign up here (<https://bit.ly/Range-Career>) and you’ll get the link to the workshop.
2. If you want to learn more about rangeland careers, view dozens of current available jobs (summer, part-time and full-time, temporary and permanent), and meet with potential employers, register for the 2021 Society for Range Management Virtual Meeting (15-18 February)
  - Register for 4 great days of information and interaction (More Information Here). Full meeting costs $50-$75 for students and young professionals.

